

TEEN FRIENDS OF ARCHEOLOGY

The Teen Friends of Archeology is excited to invite you to a lecture on the Indus Civilization by Dr. Jonathan Mark Kenoyer.

Archaeological Techniques and Excavating the Indus Civilization

Saturday, April 9th, 2022

1:00 PM (PT)

Register at <https://bit.ly/3CugDvt>

Presented by Dr. Jonathan Mark Kenoyer
University of Wisconsin, Madison

A general overview of the Indus civilization will be presented along with discussions of how archaeologists find sites, how they excavate them and how they study the artifacts that are discovered from the sites. Special focus will be on some of the traditional as well as innovative new techniques that archaeologists use to discover sites. It will also cover some important analytical approaches that are used to study different types of artifacts to gain unique information about the technologies and social organization of the ancient Indus communities.

Jonathan Mark Kenoyer, is the George F. Dales Jr. and Barbara A. Dales Professor of Anthropology, at the Department of Anthropology, University of Wisconsin, Madison. He is the author of numerous books and edited volumes on the archaeology of South Asia and the Indus civilization. He has excavated key ancient cities and elucidated contemporary urban patterns in Pakistan and India. He is a leading figure in South Asian archaeology, history, and ancient civilizations.